Well, not really 99, actually 67. And, uh, not problems, but emails. Here's the breakdown:

34 legitimate inquiries, mostly about the Zappo's outlet... more on that coming soon, I've responded to a few of you but can't always keep up. Also a lot of requests to allow posts from registered users; for now I'm going to keep things as is so I don't have to police the site all the time.

4 weirdos... no thanks!

11 requests for more info about me personally. While I'm not running this site to dish about my personal stuff, I've been convinced to share an image. If it garners a lot of weirdness I'll just remove it (gentlemen, try myspace for shallow hookups, I'm just not the type).

15 spam... again, no thanks.

And finally, a measly 3 emails that just said that they liked the site and the articles. The log chart says over a thousand unique visitors have been here since it started... so thanks, even if you don't have a moment to thank me! :)

Coming next week: two new restaurant reviews and some interior shots of the Zappo's outlet. I have the pics, but I always have problems getting them off the camera and uploaded.
